Once upon a time there was a box named Apples and a T.V. named Oranges. They were brother and sister and they were best friends. One day they wanted to go and play outside in the backyard because it was sunny. It started to rain. Then it started to POUR! The weather was horrible! They were getting SO wet so they asked kindly if they could come inside, but their mother didn't let them because they just asked to go outside. So now, they had to stay outside until it was supper. When it was supper time, they came in and got all dried up because their mom let them back inside.
